There are many who do not know that we are here because of Nintendo, or that Nintendo exists. As it turns out, Nintendo has been in the news quite a bit over the past decade, and its games have been responsible for an equal amount of internet drama. Just a few months ago, we had to deal with a big legal battle between Nintendo and the Federal Trade Commission, and just a few months before that we had a gigantic $4 million judgment against a Nintendo fan who had bricked his Switch. Nintendo has never been popular, and we don't know what kind of effect all of this has had on sales. Even still, Nintendo has a massive presence on the internet. They have a lot of support, and a lot of people are very passionate about them. Because of this passion, Nintendo has been a popular target for internet abuse. In one year alone, Nintendo had to deal with more than 70 DMCA takedowns because of abusive commenters on YouTube. There were other big internet names, like Crunchyroll, that were affected by this, and this brings us to the lawsuit against Nintendo 82157476af
