Trump to pair more generals with Cabinet secretaries President Donald Trump will elevate more generals to top civilian positions, according to an Axios report. Why it matters: Trump has been preparing to fight the next battle in his protracted trade war with China, which he has accused of not fulfilling its side of their trade deal. Some of the details of that deal are reportedly coming out. U.S. Ambassador to China Terry Branstad is also preparing to leave his post, which will be filled by Trump's nominee for Ambassador to China. Trump will also be filling that post, but for the first time since he took office, the president-elect will have two general-equals on the National Security Council: Chief Strategist Steve Bannon and former Lt. Gen. H.R. McMaster. More from Axios: The plan is to name several individuals to top Defense and Treasury roles by the time of the president's Jan. 20 inauguration. The Wall Street Journal is reporting that Commerce Secretary nominee
