. but does not allow designing custom maps (by drag and drop), or custom battles (by choosing a custom map). I am sure someone must have made something like this. Any hints will be appreciated. A: My self I have made a mod for that. On the team builder, you will have an option in that when you select a team you can choose a map and a custom battle. I know it's not a native feature, but I hope it will help someone. Click to see the image. Edit: Here are some screenshots of the mod: This is the "new" battle mode, you can see you have different lists on your team and on your enemies, for example, you will have 3 armies (red, yellow and blue) and 10 battles (just to show the example) you can move them if you want. This is an example of the builder. You can see the maps and you can drag the army and choose a battle. The Miami Marlins plan to keep Jose Fernandez in the rotation to start the season even though he's likely to miss the first six weeks with an elbow injury, general manager Dan Jennings said Monday. Marlins ace Jose Fernandez is recovering from Tommy John surgery. AP "It's our intent to have him on the mound the first series of the season," Jennings said. The 22-year-old Fernandez, who had surgery in March, threw a bullpen session on Friday. He could throw another one in a week or two and the Marlins don't want to risk any setbacks that might sideline him again, Jennings said. "You can't rush this and risk his arm falling apart," Jennings said. The procedure Fernandez underwent was similar to the one on New York Yankees star and reigning AL Cy Young Award winner CC Sabathia, who also tore the UCL in his pitching arm. Fernandez said he expects to make a full recovery and has no long-term concerns. "I don't have any doubts about it," he told the Miami Herald after Friday's workout. "It's been more of a psychological thing." Fernandez led the major leagues with an ERA of 1.78 and 8215746af
